N^o. II.

Of the many peculiar advantages of PUBLIC HOSPITALS:

With an Account of the COUNTY-HOSPITAL at Winchester; and the Second Annual Report of the State of the Patients and the Accounts, at a General Court of GOVERNORS on St. Luke's Day, October 18, 1738.

THE County-Hospital at Winchester being the FIRST of the kind which has been attempted in any part of the Kingdom except at London and Westminster, the Governors think it may be of use to lay before their Countrymen in one View some of the many Benefits of Publick Hospitals; to which They are the more encouraged by the Spirit which their Example has raised at Bristol, Bath, and other Places.

And though it is with the greatest Concern, They observe the Difficulties which have hitherto defeated the laudable Attempts that have already been made to promote this Charity in several Counties, They hope their Fellow-Laborers will not lose any Opportunity of renewing their Endeavours; because They can assure them from their own Experience, that a proper and steady Perseverance in this glorious Work will undoubtedly reward their Pains with success; and that when Men are once awakened to a Sense of the Benefits of a Charity, which is the most extensive as well as unexceptionable of all others, the general Good of Mankind, will prevail over all the Discouragements that can be thrown in the way by Men of narrow and selfish Dispositions.

I. A Public Hospital is the only certain way of relieving the Poor-Sick; who are frequently neglected and over-looked at their own Homes; because Physicians and Surgeons can neither give their attendance, nor dispence their Medicines with any convenience at more places than One; and because their concerns are of too private a nature to engage the attention of any but the very Few Who make it their business to inquire after Them.

II. It is the most safe and eligible manner of doing it; because the care and neatness, as well as the simplicity and regularity of Diet, with which the Poor are kept in an Hospital, do all contribute much sooner to their Recovery, than their own way of living; and are often more effectual than Physic in the Cure of several of the most inveterate Distempers.

III. THE Expence of relieving a great number of Sick Persons in an Hospital, bears no proportion to that of assisting them at their separate Homes: And the Widow's Mite entrusted with Those who can dispose of it to the utmost advantage, will go farther towards answering the Ends of Charity, than a Sum of Money bestowed at random on such as are incompetent judges of the use of it, or of the proper manner of laying it out.

IV. It opens a Channel for private Charities which has been long wanted, and enables persons to lay them out to certain advantage; because Every One has it in his power from the moment he subscribes, to recommend a Patient, and by that means may be assured, that his Bounty cannot be misapplied: Whereas almost all private Charities have hitherto been wasted, and rendered ineffectual thro' indolence, or want of knowing how to direct the expence; or by the various sorts of Mismanagement, which are in some measure unavoidable, and which are too well known, and too heavily felt, to need any particular explanation.

V. IT is incapable of being so far abused or perverted, as to make Any One repent of their Bounty; which will appear to Those Who consider that, tho' the greatest part of the income should really be misapplied, there would still be more good done by it, than by a larger Sum in any other manner. For a thousand persons will be relieved here at a less expence, than would be required for an hundred in obstinate or chronical Cases.

VI. IT is a Charity that is subject to no Imposture, but what must be discovered by the Physicians and Surgeons.

VII. IT prevents most of the Evils that are common to the Poor, by administering an immediate support in the time of Sickness, and does in some measure supply all their Wants more effectually than Money itself; by which means It gives the Poor (in the case of Accidents, to which they are most subject) a considerable advantage over their Betters: The Supplies, that are immediately wanted, are here granted in kind without any delay. Advice and Medicines are to the Sick, what Food is to the Hungry, and Clothes to the Naked. This Reason (amongst many others) proves that a Public Hospital is of more use in the Country than even in London, where help of every kind is always at hand.

VIII. IT provides for the relief and comfort of Multitudes who are unable to be at the expence of Advice or Physick, but are not distinguished by the name of THE POOR, because They do not come under the care of a Parish or a Workhouse; and yet are most of all entitled to the regards of the Public; since They are in present want; and are of the diligent and industrious, that is, of the useful and valuable part of all Society.

IX. IT multiplies every Good that can be done to the Poor in any other way, by easing whole Families of the burden of attending and providing for their sick Relations; so that the Miserable are relieved and comforted, and their Families are at liberty to earn their own Support at the same time.

X. IT preserves Them from the ill usage of ignorant Quacks and Impostors, Who too often take advantage of their Necessities; and not only insensibly drain them of the little Money They have, under pretence of selling cheap Medicines; but frequently destroy their Health for want of Honesty or Skill.

XI. IT is of infinite Use to All Other persons, and as serviceable to the Rich as the Poor, by furnishing the Physicians and Surgeons with more experience in one Year, than They could have in ten without it.

XII. IT is a most certain means of increasing the number of the People; as well as of saving a multitude of Hands, who are often lost for want of timely assistance: And it deserves to be remembered, that a third part of what every labouring Man earns, is so much clear gains to the Public.

XIII. IT enables Parishes (when They are relieved of the great Burden of supporting the Sick) to provide better for the maintenance of Orphans and Aged Persons. And it is certain, that the number of both these sorts must gradually decrease, by a provident care of the Sick; Who will be enabled for the most part to educate their Children, as well as to provide before-hand for their own Support against the Extremities of Old Age.

XIV. IT reduces the number of Vagrants by depriving them of one of their most plausible Reasons for begging from door to door, under the specious pretence of sick Relations or Friends for whom They are concerned: So that they who are Idle and able to work, will be obliged to have recourse to some Employment, and make themselves serviceable Members of the Community, when they are not supplied in the usual manner from the public and private Charities, which are too often distributed without any due regard to the different Necessities of the Poor.

XV. IT is a sort of Charity which is calculated to promote a Spirit of Religion and Virtue amongst the Common People. As an Hospital is supplied with Patients from all Parts, it must needs be that a Spirit of Religion and Gratitude will be gradually spread throughout a whole Country. It may be reasonably presumed that great Numbers of the Poor will be insensibly reclaimed by the exact regularity of Manners which is maintained here; and by their being removed out of the way of bad Examples for so long a time as may beget in them contrary Habits; as well as by the frequency of such Reflections as are naturally suggested in the House of Mourning. For We can never hope to secure their Affections, soften their Passions, reform their Manners, and possess them with a sense of their Duty to GOD and their Superiors so effectually as by this feeling way to Instruction.

XVI. IT is the most comprehensive of all Charities; because there is scarce any One Species of doing good which is not promoted by it. For the Sick are visited and relieved; — the Stranger is taken in; — the Ignorant instructed; — the Bad reclaimed; — present Wants are supplied, and future ones prevented; — and (by easing Families of the burden of supporting their sick Friends) it is also a Means of feeding the Hungry, cloathing the Naked, cherishing the industrious Poor, and preserving a multitude of useful Members to the Public, &c. &c.

THESE are BENEFITS which without any shadow of doubt are peculiar to this Charity, and are of great consequence to All and Singular; to the Rich as well as the Poor; and to the public as well as the private Estate of Men. Any One of them should be sufficient to convince Us of its use, and All of them together must warm Men into proper resolutions of encouraging and supporting a Charity, which is the Glory of other Countries, and has long been the Reproach of OUR OWN.

THE COUNTY-HOSPITAL at Winchester,

Is established on a Plan of the most approved methods in the best Foundations both at Home and Abroad; and that the Public may have the greatest assurance of a well-ordered Charity, the management of it is entrusted for the most part to a select number of such as are the greatest Contributors, and consequently the most interested in its success.

Any persons who subscribe two Pounds or more per Annum or give a benefaction of twenty Pounds are made Governors.

A COMMITTEE of the Governors (consisting of all that subscribe five Pounds per Annum, a Chairman, two Treasurers and twelve Others, whereof there are to be Six new Ones elected every Year) meet every Wednesday to admit and discharge Patients, adjust the Accounts, receive the Reports of the Visitors, examine into the Affairs of the House, &c. which they do also at other times as often as there is occasion.

Two of the Contributors are appointed every Week to visit the House daily, and examine into the Behaviour of the Patients and Servants, and see that the Patients have their due Provision and Attendance; and that the Orders of the House be punctually observed; of all which They are to write down their Report in a Book which is provided for that purpose.

Two others are appointed Auditors to examine the Books and prepare all Bills that are to be laid before the Committee and paid every Month; and They are to see that the consumption of Bread and Meat, &c. does not exceed the stated Allowance; and that the Oeconomy of the House be strictly observed in other Articles.

THE Clergy of Winchester attend in their turns to visit and instruct the Sick; to read Prayers every Day in the Wards; to give the Communion once a Month, and perform such other Duties as are proper to their Function.

THERE are two Physicians and two Surgeons who attend the Out-Patients at fixed times, and visit the Patients in the House daily, or whenever their Cases require it.

An Apothecary lives in the House; and such of the Governors as are Apothecaries have a power of visiting the Dispensary, and examining in their turns all the Drugs and Medicines that are expended (which are bought at the first hand) whereof they are to give an account to the Committee.

A General Court of Governors is held at least four times a Year to take the Reports of the Committee, make new Rules, and inspect the Accounts, which are very orderly and faithfully kept, and are open at all times to the examination of every Governor.

EXACT Registers are preserved of the Transactions of the Governors, and of all Matters whatever relating to Persons or Things which concern the Hospital. And there are other Books in which regular Entries are made of all the Patients, with their Names, Ages, Places of Abode, Distempers, Time and Manner of their Discharge from the Hospital, &c. together with the Names of their Recommenders; all which particulars are digested into an alphabetical order, so that at any distant time a Subscriber may at one view see how many Patients he has recommended, how They behaved, and how long Any or All of them were under the Care of the Hospital, as well as what success They had in it.

THE Governors have taken all imaginable pains to preserve the strictest regularity of Manners, and a due sense of Religion amongst the Patients, whilst they are in the Hospital, which has already had a very visible effect. They are all admitted (except in the case of Accidents) and discharged in the Presence of the COMMITTEE of Governors, and receive the strictest charge concerning their Behaviour. They are provided with the use of the best Books, and have daily opportunities of being instructed by Those whose Duty it is to attend upon this very thing. The Rules of the House are read over to them in the Wards once a Week; and on their discharge They are furnished with a proper Book of Instruction, and solemnly reminded by the Chairman of their Duty to GOD and their Benefactors.

THE Physicians, Surgeons, Auditors, Treasurers, Visitors, Clergy, and all the Members of the COMMITTEE attend their respective Duties in the Hospital without Fee or Reward.

By these Regulations the GOVERNORS were enabled to begin and complete a Work in less than three Months which they hope is established for Ages; being persuaded that the Order and Conduct of the whole Charity is placed on such a foot, as to make it the Glory and Interest of every Person in every Station to support and maintain it.

AND as the Benefits of an HOSPITAL are already felt with joy and transport by the Poor; THEY who have a Property in any part of the County, are earnestly intreated to give some effectual and public proof of their Zeal in behalf of an Institution, which enables them to administer such help to their Countrymen, in the most distressed circumstances, as neither Money nor Friends can procure them any where else. It may well be expected from ALL, who can look beyond themselves, and are capable of being moved by Considerations of common concern, that they promote and encourage this Charity, if they cannot recommend a more useful one in its stead.

AND though there are many other excellent Charities, it may safely be affirmed that This is the Only One by which so much real Good may be done at so little expence. For these Foundations not only do good to the Patients themselves, but to their Families and their Posterity, many of whom will owe their Ease and Subsistence, and even their very Being to the generous provision that is here made for their Sick Friends. And if we add These to the Account, it will swell the List so high as to make the Hospital an immense Blessing to our County; and such as would surpass all imagination, if it were not confirmed by undoubted experience. Yet many and great as the benefits are, the Burden of it is not to be felt. 'Tis indeed so inconsiderable as to be below all regard to each Subscriber, who must feel an inexpressible Satisfaction in knowing that His single Benefaction has already contributed to the Relief of hundreds; and that he has been one of the happy Instruments of promoting a Work which has opened an unexpected Door of Ease and Comfort to all that are bowed down with Poverty and Sickness; a Work which, in the compass of a few Years, will be the means of greatly increasing the number of our People, and of preserving an infinite multitude of Persons from Ruin and Distress.

WHAT remains to be done towards perpetuating an Establishment, which is to be supported by voluntary Contributions, depends upon Events that are in NO MAN'S Power: But as the Governors have removed every Objection, and obviated every insinuation that can be made to its prejudice, They humbly hope They shall want neither the Hands nor the Hearts of any good and worthy Person in assisting them to bring this excellent Charity to its perfect Work, which ALMIGHTY GOD has blessed with such signal and unexampled Success, as gives them a reasonable expectation that it will soon become a general Blessing to our Country; and be conveyed down to our latest Posterity.

Winchester December 30, 1738.

Though the Expences have been increased beyond what was intended, when the last Report was printed, the Governors have the Satisfaction of assuring the Public, that they were not mistaken in their Computation of what They could have done; but have been obliged to buy a much greater quantity of Bedding, Linen, and Furniture; as well as to enlarge the Wards; build four Garrets for the Servants; and make such other alterations as were necessary, in order to add ten more Patients Beds to what they had before; that Nobody might be discouraged from contributing to the Charity for want of proper accommodations for so many Patients as may probably answer the ordinary demands of the County. And the Event has shewed that they were not deceived in their Judgment, every One of the Sixty Beds having been several times filled together; though They have been hitherto so happy as not to have rejected One Patient for want of room.

In order to make every Subscriber a judge of the Oeconomy with which the whole has been conducted, They have exhibited at one view the several Articles of Expence from the Foundation of the Charity, and have distinguished them under their proper heads.

A PLAN of the Ground the Hospital stands upon, is herewith annexed. And if it be considered that near a third part of it has been built entirely from the Ground; and that This, with the new Works which have been raised on old Foundations, have cost more than half as much as the Building of the whole would have done; a thousand Pounds must be thought a very moderate Sum for so great a Work.

N. B. THE Subscribers are desired to remember that the early payment of their respective Charities either to the Treasurer at Winchester, or Mess. Hoare and Comp. Bankers in Fleet-street, will be always thankfully acknowledged, as a valuable circumstance in their Benefactions; because it will save the Expence of a Collection, and ease the Governors immediately concerned of the most troublesome part of their Business.

A Complete Set of INSTRUMENTS for LITHOTOMY, by Mr. Bigg, Surgeon to St. Bartholomew's Hospital.
A Kitchen JACK, &c. by the Rev. Dr Burton.

N. B. There were but Three Guineas in Arrear from the Subscribers at Michaelmas; and the Subscriptions that have failed this Year, by Death, or otherwise, do not exceed fifteen Pounds.

N. B. Since this Report was made, The Arrears have been paid, and the Whole Debt reduced to two hundred Pounds.

As to the current Charge it appears by the Accounts, that the Expence of the Patients, one with another, does not amount to forty Shillings each, though the Benefit of the Hospital has been worth as many Pounds to an hundred and fifty of those that were Discharged only in this last Year; whereof an hundred were relieved (one with another) from three to six Months each; and above fifty, from six to eighteen Months; which is such a recommendation of the Charity, as must engage even those who are of the most cold and selfish Dispositions, to support an Institution that is of as much use to the RICH as the POOR.

And if half as many more Patients, as we have had, should hereafter be admitted, the Expence of each will be still less than it has hitherto been, because the same number of Nurses and Servants that are now in the House, will be sufficient for the proper Attendance.
